

Silent retreat of teachings and meditation with

Ajahn Khemasiri

from 8 – 15 november 2026

Ajahn Khemasiri is a Buddhist monk in the Thai forest tradition.

He was initially inspired by the Thai meditation master Ajahn Chah and his senior Western disciple Ajahn Sumedho, who allowed him to join the monastic order in 1986.

He spent his 34 monastic years in England, Thailand, Myanmar and Switzerland.

From 2005 until 2018 he was the abbot of Dhammapala Monastery in Switzerland.

In 2018 he stepped back from his duties as the leader of the Swiss monastic community and lived since then independently in various monasteries in Europe and North America.

DANA GIVING

- According to the Buddhist tradition, monks and nuns do not demand any remuneration,
- In keeping with a tradition that has been perpetuated for more than 2500 years, the teachings are offered without consideration.
- Participants are invited to make a free donation to the teacher's monastery
 - In this tradition the practice of generosity is an integral part of the way.
- Remember that the monasteries are totally dependent on the generosity of the laity and that the monks give us the most important gift: that of the Dhamma.
